PROTECTING CHILDREN'S PRIVACY ONLINE

The protection of children's privacy is especially important. ONLINE SECURITY STATEMENT

First Federal is pleased to offer online banking services. Delivering these services requires a solid security framework that protects you and our data from outside intrusion. We are committed to providing the safest operating environment possible for our customers.

There are several levels of security within our security framework. You must use a browser that supports the Secure Socket Layer (SSL) encryption if you wish to take full advantage of the security features on our site. SSL allows you to securely send and receive encrypted data over the internet. This protocol provides a secure channel for data transmission through its public/private key encryption capabilities. When you visit pages requesting sensitive personal information, we will encrypt the data to prevent third parties from accessing it in transit.

To begin a session with our online banking service, you must key in your Access ID, answer a challenge question if prompted, and then enter your password. Upon three unsuccessful login attempts, the system will lock you out, requiring you to contact First Federal at 415-456-4937 in order to regain access to our online banking service.

UNSOLICITED EMAIL

First Federal does not send unsolicited email messages or place pop-up advertisements that request personal borrower or depositor information such as your account number(s) or account password(s), or your social security number.

If you ever get an unsolicited email claiming to be from First Federal asking for your personally identifiable information or account information, please do not respond. For your privacy protection, call us at 415-456-4937 and forward the email to onlinesupport@ffsavings.com.

USER RESPONSIBILITIES

While our service provider continues to evaluate and implement the latest improvements in internet security technology, users of our online banking service also have responsibility for the security of their information and should always follow the recommendations listed below:

- Use the latest versions of Microsoft Internet Explorer, Mozilla Firefox, Google Chrome or Safari browser version that supports 128 bit encryption.
- Exercise care when using your Access ID and Password. Do not make your password easy to guess by others.
- Never lend your Access ID or Password to anyone and never write it on your PC or computer materials.
- Never accept advice from strangers while you are using your Access ID and Password.
- Beware of fraudulent request for your password by someone posing as a First Federal employee. A First Federal employee would never ask for this information!
- Never leave your computer unattended while logged onto our online banking services. Someone may approach your computer and gain access to your account information or your bank account if you are away.
